

Accessing your super

July 2025

Super is intended for you to use in retirement, so the law restricts access to your super until specific conditions are met.

There are three types of benefit categories within super:

- Unrestricted non-preserved benefits
- Preserved benefits, and
- Restricted non-preserved benefits

Your benefit statement will show you the amount of super you have in each category.

You can access your unrestricted non-preserved benefit at any time. However, you can only access your preserved or restricted non-preserved benefit when you meet one of the conditions in the table below. If you have transferred super from your New Zealand KiwiSaver to your Australian account, stricter rules may apply to the amount you transferred.
